Absurdities and Results.

Some of the anti-administration organs are very much amused at what they call the polite language of Mr. Wilson's last note to Carranza. What he should have done, of course, was to threaten Carranza in the severe style in which the international bully makes known his will to a small and feeble power. On the contrary, he actually talked to Carranza as if he belonged to a people who were entitled to some consideration and who were able to back up their claims to respect with a big army and navy.

Pity about that man Wilson! He is always doing something visionary and absurd. And yet, so contrary and illogical are events, be nearly always gets good results. Carrana ought to have laughed at him and made faces at him, as the American critics are doing, but instead of that he actually does what the President requests. Of course, this merely illustrates what luck some people have. The only diplomacy that is worth anything is the diplomacy of force, the sort of diplomacy that has brought about the present desirable and pacific conditions in Europe.—

ELEPHANT FARM IN MISSOURI

P. 'Hall of Lancaster, Controls Prices of the Huge Animals in Western Hemisphere.

A Missourian has an elephant farm and controls the price of elephants in the markets of the Western hemisphere, supplying menageries, shows and zoological gardens with specimens. He is William P. ("Diamond Bill") Hall of Lancaster.

J. Kelley Wright, lecturer for the state board of agriculture, went to Lancaster to get photographs of the Hall farm which he will use in his ilhistrated lecture, "Missouri," before the high schools of the state.

"Ever since I began collecting the pictures and the facts for this lecture on 'Missouri,' " said Mr. Wright, "I have been finding new things in which Missouri is first. Personally I would have placed elephants at the bottom of any list of possible first things in Missouri, but it turns out that Mr. Hall has the biggest firm in the country, and controls the price of elephants in the Western hemis-

The train was made up of twenty cars; fourteen of them went into the ditch. Six oil tanks were in the train, five of crude oil and one of gasoline. It is supposed the devailment caused a spark which ignited the C J Marstellar to J A Rogers lot asoline fumes and the flames rapidly spread to the other cars. The engine remained upon the track and pulled six cars still on the track away from the buring train. It is not known what caused the derailment.

Fair Fruit Prospects.
It is the opinion of farmers and fruit raisers in the White River country that the prospects were never better for a big crop year—especially for the fruit crop. The continued cool weather has held the fruit buds back, and no trees are yet in blossom. Spring weather is long overdue, and this, the fruit experts say, is the very best thing for the coming crop year. Much plowing has been done in the Ozark hills, but in many places the ground has been to wet to plow, the soil being hills, but in many places the ground has been to wet to plow, the soil being raisers' association in the world, with soaked from the many winter raise 5,000 members.
